Romantic Vacation Destinations for Couples

Any vacation you take with your sweetheart can be made into a romantic getaway just by enjoying the time alone with each other, but some vacation destinations can add a little more to the mood you're trying to make if you want your next vacation to be extra special. Whether it's for an anniversary, Valentine's Day, a honeymoon, or just because you want to reconnect, choosing the right spot that you'll both appreciate can guarantee you've set the stage to make some unforgettable memories with the one you love.

Overseas Vacations

If you can afford it, flying to another country can be an incredible experience to share with your partner. Some of the most romantic spots in the world are the in the oldest countries with the richest history. France and Italy can provide a traditional romantic atmosphere while India or Africa may give a more exotic experience. Depending on the interests you share with your significant other, you may find the jungles of the Amazon the most enticing and romantic spot on Earth.

Planning an international vacation can sometimes come with complications and extra effort in the vacation planning process. In order to keep your getaway a romantic and pleasant experience, take any extra steps available to ensure you have everything in the proper order and triple check your reservations on flights, hotels, and car rentals. Using a travel agency and utilizing the safety net of travel insurance will be a big relief to both you and your partner should there be any unexpected surprises on your vacation.

Staying Local

You don't need to fly across the globe to have the most amazingly romantic experience with the person you share your life with. Driving to a nearby coast town to rent a cabin or heading into the city to stay in a penthouse suite can become the most extravagant getaway possible with the right planning.

Even when you've lived in an area your whole life, you may not know what your city has to offer. Every city has its most romantic dining spots so seeking out a place neither of you have ever been to could be a lovely surprise. Be sure to read up on reviews before making any reservations to avoid any potential let downs on your romantic evening.

Romantic Vacation Activities

If your romantic vacation puts you on a resort with a spa, take an afternoon to enjoy a couple's spa treatment. If the penthouse you're staying in has a Jacuzzi, put it to use by sharing a bubbly soak with a quality bottle of Champagne. In any old style city, a carriage ride in the evening while gazing into each other's eyes will have you feeling like you just fell in love all over again. Regardless of where you travel to, checking in with the local tourism center will help you plan a few romantic activities to share together.
